Expanding the Economic and Innovation
Opportunities of Spectrum Through Incentive Auctions
Docket No. 12-268

As a college professor and television viewer, I'm troubled by the FCC's proposal to take spectrum from television stations to auction off to wireless companies.

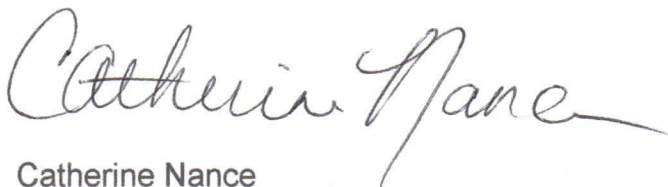

Please do not take any part of the existing television spectrum from broadcasters. All licensed television stations, and especially LPTV stations, are serving the public interest as no huge wireless company could ever do. It's of the utmost importance that no LPTV station lose its spectrum.

The FCC's proposed auction and repacking plan would take from the small television stations that serve the public so admirably to benefit the powerful and greedy wireless giants that are seeking to monopolize communications.

Of all the comments that have been filed in this proceeding, the comments with which I totally agree and enthusiastically endorse are those filed by International Broadcasting Network. Accordingly, I adopt IBN's comments in their entirety as my own.

This proceeding should be closed as being contrary to the public interest.

Respectfully submitted,
